Early evolution : The earliest films were simply one static shot that showed an event or action with no editing or other cinematic techniques. Typical films showed employees leaving a factory gate, people walking in the street, the view from the front of a trolley as it traveled a city's Main Street. According to legend, when a film showed a locomotive at high speed approaching the audience, the audience panicked and ran from the theater. Around the turn of the 20th century, films started stringing several scenes together to tell a story. The filmmakers who first put several shots or scenes discovered that, when one shot follows another, that act establishes a relationship between the content in the separate shots in the minds of the viewer. It is this relationship that makes all film storytelling possible. In a simple example, if a person is shown looking out a window, whatever the next shot shows, it will be regarded as the view the person was seeing. Each scene was a single stationary shot with the action occurring before it. The scenes were later broken up into multiple shots photographed from different distances and angles. Other techniques such as camera movement were developed as effective ways to tell a story with film. Until sound film became commercially practical in the late 1920s, motion pictures were a purely visual art, but these innovative silent films had gained a hold on the public imagination. Rather than leave audiences with only the noise of the projector as an accompaniment, theater owners hired a pianist or organist or, in large urban theaters, a full orchestra to play music that fit the mood of the film at any given moment. By the early 1920s, most films came with a prepared list of sheet music to be used for this purpose, and complete film scores were composed for major productions.

The Chinese film industry had lost US billion by March 2020, having closed all its cinemas during the Lunar New Year period that sustains the industry across Asia.² North America saw its lowest box office weekend since 1998 between March 13–15.³ Demon Slayer: Mugen Train, the highest-grossing film of 2020, earned 3 million worldwide.⁴ It was the first time since 2007 that the top-grossing film of a given year had earned less than billion and the first time a non-American film was the top-grossing film of the year.⁵

By March 12, Cinemark, AMC and National CineMedia stocks had all fallen by over 35% since the beginning of the month.¹⁸¹ Cineworld, the world's second-largest cinema chain, warned on March 12, when multiple films pushed back their releases, that extended disruption and continuing falling stock could cause the company to collapse.¹⁸⁰¹⁸² In August 2020, California announced a new color-coded tier system that would allow restrictions to be lifted in specific counties based on health metrics, effective August 31.¹⁸³¹⁸⁴ Cinemas would be allowed to operate at limited capacity if a county is in the red Substantial tier or better. This would scale from at 25%¹⁰⁰ patrons whichever is smaller in red counties, to 50%²⁰⁰ patrons in orange Moderate counties, and 50% with no hard maximum in counties under the lowest yellow Minimal tier. The majority of the state was still in the purple Widespread tier at the onset of the system, where cinemas remained closed. These health orders can still be superseded with stricter rules by local officials.¹⁸⁵
